

The LAL Users' Group Presents

The Return of the LAL Users' Group Meeting

May 13, 2008
Merck and Company, West Point, PA

About the Meeting:

For those of you who have never attended a Users' Group meeting, you're in for a treat. This is a meeting held by and for those who use the Bacterial Endotoxins Test. The main purpose of the meeting is to provide a relaxed atmosphere for networking and questions. In the morning, we typically have a short topic speaker and a non-commercial presentation by a representative from one of the US lysate manufacturers. In the afternoon, we learn what new technologies or methodologies the lysate manufacturer has to offer. We top it all off with our famous round table discussion, where anyone can ask a question and anyone can answer it.

Our Host:

Meetings space and lunch are donated by one of our member companies. We would like to thank Merck and Company in West Point Pennsylvania for hosting the meeting and our Steering Committee member Cheryl Moser for the arrangements.

Registration Fee:

There is no registration fee.

The Agenda:

- Business meeting and welcome 9AM
- Short topic speaker, Dr. Ron Berzofsky. "Do you really want to test at the MVD?"
- Main speaker (To be announced)
- Lunch
- What's new for BET? Commercial presentation by our main speaker
- Questions/Round Table

For more information and to register:

Keep an eye on <http://www.microbiologyforum.org/LAL.htm> or contact Karen McCullough at karenzm@embarqmail.com